What you can do now:

Wash your child's hands often to remove lead dust.

Wash your child's toys and pacifiers often to remove lead dust.

Wash hard surfaces like floors and windows 1 day a week, to remove dust.

Give your baby foods high in calcium vitamin C and iron.

Wipe your feet! Keep lead dust outside.

Do not dry-scrape or burn paint.

Have your baby tested for lead poisoning at 9 months old, and again on their 2nd and 3rd birthdays.

Over 95 percent of the homes in Philadelphia contain lead. Over 3,000 children had high blood lead levels in 2006*. Lead can harm a child for the rest of her/his life. So you must prevent your child from being lead poisoned.
