How well does each model commemorate the lives of all the people who inhabited the President's House?

What features do you particularly like or dislike about each model?

Team	Like	Dislike
Amaze Design	Open to 6 th St; water feature for memorial; Liberty Tower is handsome and highly visible to attract people to site	Liberty Tower could soon look very dated; visitors just passing through will not get much content
Davis Buckley	good address to President's House footprint; Mt. Vernon info on glass wall; representation of slave and free states	No interpretation of executive branch; slave quarters v. house print footprint is bound to be confusing; statues not good sculptures; names of 9 not visible; free black Philadelphia nowhere in interpretation; 6 th St. walled off; no program space
EwingCole	#1: Voices instead of text VERY strong; shady welcome will draw people to site; maximum interpretive flexibility; clear presence of President's House; research fellowship excellent	Could be visually busy until greenery established; maintenance of technology and plants will be essential; loss of House front door leaves house a bit unanchored on Market St.
Howard+Revis	George Washington quote is GREAT! – use in design no matter who wins; using both sides of sculpture encourages movement	President's House footprint incidental; Fraunces not black; too little of enslaved women; little interaction among the separate "scenes"; 6 th St. side completely sterile
Kelly/Maiello	Very strong on executive branch; names of 9 strongly visible	Steps at front block access for disabled to preferred pathway;

		slave quarters hidden and enclosed and way back from main interpretive area; Philadelphia free black community not visible on outside of House, where they had major importance; no access to President's House from 6 th St.

Additional comments: Davis Buckley is only firm that addresses Martha as a slaveholder; crucial to present more complex story of Judge escape in all designs; Kelly/Maiello by far strongest on executive branch. I prefer EwingCole because of flexibility and multi-sensory interpretation; design also offers uniquely welcoming space for visitors, which will be essential to interrupt headlong rush to Liberty Bell.

Amaze Design	Beautiful; interesting; fun design, good incorporation of outdoor space
Davis Buckley		I think it would be a mistake to have such a strong emphasis on slavery at the entrance. It reduces the site to a conversation about just that topic – which is important, but not primary.
EwingCole		Boring entrance!

What features do you particularly like or dislike about each model?

Team	Like	Dislike
Amaze Design	Nothing	Too cold, stark
Davis Buckley	Entrance is beautiful	Too simple, no interpretation
EwingCole	Visitor experience; interactive	Too much maintenance involved
Howard+Revis	Nothing	Boring design and format
Kelly/Maiello	Impressive architecture; visitor experience is interesting; idea of images on LED screens very appealing. My vote.

Additional comments: Kelly/Maeillo's rendering of the President's House is eye catching to the visitor walking by. Most people would want to enter and experience the site. Having both visual and dialogues will further enhance the experience.
