

PaRC Stars

The Parks and Recreation Commission (PaRC) is honoring outstanding volunteers who are helping to make Philadelphia's Parks and Recreation Centers among the best in the nation.

The Commission is looking to recognize those outstanding, but unsung, individuals in our City who give their time and efforts to preserve, promote and enhance the places, programs and facilities of the Philadelphia Department of Parks and Recreation. These are individuals who often go unnoticed, but are vital in the overall success of what takes place in our parks and facilities.

The Commission is actively seeking nominations of volunteer individuals from community leaders, Parks and Recreation employees, and others. The Commission will recognize a volunteer PaRC Star at each public meeting in 2011.

Those wishing to make a nomination should consider the nominee's:

- Overall contribution in terms of time and effort
- Any specific accomplishment that merits recognition

A brief statement outlining these achievements and any additional information will be considered by the Commission.

The Commission will recognize the PaRC Star in a ceremony at its regularly scheduled meetings and ask the nominator to participate in the award ceremony.

For an application, please go to the Parks and Recreation website and the Fairmount Park website for the link to the Commission on Parks and Recreation.
