INTRODUCTION: FRANKFORD’S HISTORICAL CHURCHES AND BURIAL GROUNDS IN GENERAL

Frankford was established in the late 17th Century as Quaker Meeting with a meetinghouse with a burial ground. In the year 1800, Frankford was still an active Quaker center, but there were no burial grounds for the African American residents.

When Frankford’s Public Burying Ground ordinance was enacted in October of 1811, America was then on the eve of a War.

The War of 1812’s beginning had roots in Philadelphia. It was here, on June 3, 1811, that William Henry Harrison (1773-1841) began his regiment’s march to the Indiana Territory. Several months later, on November 7, 1811, the unit fought the Shawnee at Tippecanoe. Some historians consider this the first battle of the War…¹

Frankford’s Black population must have been significant, because they had established an African Methodist Episcopal Congregation before 1811 and were then in the process of securing property for a burial ground and church edifice.

Frankford was still a Quaker stronghold, the War of 76 fresh in their minds – knew Blacks had served in the Revolution. They knew because, the Byberry Meeting had provided “Free Negroes” a burial ground in 1780 even before the War’s end.

The African-Americans as Slaves (in contradistinction to the Quakers) were always the codependent innocent bystanders, having neither choice in war nor the freedom to refuse to fight.

The African-Americans were active in carrying munitions & baggage, they became soldiers of the United States by default, while many of the Religious Society of Friends exercised their right not to support the American War due to conscience & religious beliefs established by William Penn.²

Historically the Quakers, sometimes known as Friends, did not allow the burial of Black people within their graveyards.

There was racism among Friends. The Quaker meetings were segregated as well as their graveyards. *Friends are not satisfied with having negroes buried in Friends' burying ground…. Middletown Friends unanimously agreed that hereafter no Deceased Negroes be Buried Within ye Walls of sd graveyard Belonging to this Meeting. No matter how "kind" they might be as masters, they did not welcome Blacks to join the meeting, or in any way encourage them.*³

The above survey illustrates the heart of Frankford’s African American Community. The Free Buying Ground is located at the intersection of Cherry and Meadow Streets. In 1839, a portion of the Northern Division was rented to support a school for the education of the African Community. The Plan & Survey by Isaac Shallcross (next two pages) was a proposal. In the Plan, Meadow Street was expected to be extended through the middle of the graveyard. Protests and litigation soon followed. The Plan was revised.
“According to Guernsey Hallowell, author of History of Frankford, by an act of the Assembly passed March 5, 1841, The supervisors of the roads and highways of Oxford Township were deprived of jurisdiction after the second Friday of March, 1842, over the streets and highways of the Borough of Frankford, and prevented from collecting road tax therein.

The act provided that the debt due by the Township and Borough should be paid jointly. The voters of Oxford Township were authorized to elect two supervisors of roads and three auditors of road accounts, one to serve one year, one for two years, and one for three years. The voters of the Borough were to elect one auditor who, in conjunction with the auditors whose terms had not yet expired, would settle the road accounts for the year.

Isaac Shallcross, Levi Coates, and Leonard Shallcross audited the accounts of the supervisors… On April 5, 1841, it was decided to appoint surveyors who would make an official plan of all the streets and lay out new streets and sewers that would be necessary for regular and convenient town plan. Isaac Shallcross was appointed surveyor…”

MONDAY, January 18, 1841

The Speaker presented three remonstrances, signed by inhabitants of the borough of Frankford, in the county of Philadelphia, against investing the burgesses, and assistants of said borough, with exclusive control over its roads, bridges and streets. Which said petitions and remonstrances were read, and laid on the table.

The gutter between John Pride and Jacob Fry’s Stable Yard together with stagnant water around manure heap of the latter close to the main Street were found to be in very bad condition the parties were ordered to have the same abated within forty eight hours — William’ Kinsey’s privy at hedge & meadow – a nuisance.

In this week’s report—we have the painful intelligence to communicate that the Cholera has at length visited our town and neighborhood, nearly every case proving fatal within a short period of time which has cast a gloom over our striving population, as while be observed by our minutes of last stated meeting we have taken measures for the establishment of a hospital should any require to be attended to at the public expense…”

ORDINANCE

Whereas, at a time like the present, when a malignant disease is raging throughout the land, marking its pathway everywhere with the dead bodies of its victims, desolating families, and causing us to mourn not only for our relatives and friends, but for those who by their commanding talents moral worth and virtue, have rendered services to their country, deserving the commendation of free people, it becomes us while we bow with humble submission to the decree of Divine Providence to endeavor to perform our duties to one another and the community in such manner that His chastening hand will pass lightly over us. The disease at present raging among us is an atmosphere one, we are continually inhaling it, its seeds are in the breast of every one and liable at any exciting cause to claim our lives. It therefore becomes us to avoid all exciting causes, to be temperate in our diet to abstain from eating any kind of fruit or vegetables, which have a tendency to relax the system or produce nausea in the Stomach, And above all other things to observe cleanliness of person, and all over our premises, causing all filth or sources of filth to be removed, making free use of Chloride of Lime, Lime itself or other disinfecting agents. The Council have been endeavoring for the last eight months to remove all nuisances, and the Sanitary Committee have been centering in their efforts to preserve the health and lives of the Citizens, and have often persevered in the performance of their duties amidst the taunts, sneers and opposition of those from whom better things were expected. They have been actuated by a sense of duty, and feel satisfied that they have the support of all who have the good of the Community at heart — a number of our fellow Citizens have immediately on being notified of a nuisance existing on these properties, caused its removal or abatement for which we feel thankful to them, but regret to have to say, that others have not only refused to abate the most intolerable nuisances but have set at defiance the Authorities of the Borough, and the laws of the land to such, we say the laws must and will be enforced, and ask the aid, council and support of all good citizens to enable us to preserve the health of themselves and families. Therefore

Section 1st

Section 2nd
Any person offending against the requisition of this Ordinance shall pay a fine of $50.00 for every such offense, and if said Ordinance is infringed in a manner and form as above, for every hour an additional sum of Ten Dollars, to be sued for and recovered of the owners of the enclosure or Sheep, as fines or penalties due the Commonwealth on recoverable, one half of the said penalty to go to the person or persons giving information, whereby the recovery of the same may be obtained and the other half to the treasury of the Borough

Section 3rd
It shall be the duty of the Solicitor of the Borough and it is hereby specially enjoined upon him on information of any infringement of the above Ordinance, to issue the necessary process and prosecute to conviction said Offenders

In the matter of Meadow Street, in the Borough of Frankford, Philadelphia County. The undersigned, a committee appointed by the Borough aforesaid, in Answer to the Citation to shew Cause why the order to open the said Street as laid on the plan of the Borough should not be complied with, Say —

1. That the law authorizing the Survey of a Plan of the Streets of the Borough Contemplate that each Street should be opened by a separate proceeding on a separate petition. Whereas in the same petition and proceeding nine Streets were included, to wit, Tackawanna, Mulberry, Josephine, Gillingham, Meadow, Orthodox, Oxford, Ruan and Green Street.

2. That it is not known what seven or more freeholders petitioned for the opening of Meadow Street, or whether any seven freeholders were desirous of Opening that Street: if the whole nine had not been logrolled together.

3. That it is not Known to the superintendent of the Borough or Borough Councils that the damages have been assessed and paid to the owners whose ground is taken by said Street, without which it cannot be lawfully opened.

4. That the Burgess and Inhabitants of the Borough of Frankford own a lot which would be taken by said Street, "to be occupied as a public burying ground forever hereafter for the dead of all nations, sects and Colors — without any charge whatever, except the customary charge of digging and keeping up the graves," — And the present Council and inhabitants cannot find that the Corporation has ever has any notice to appear before any jury to assess damages for said ground, nor has it received any compensation therefore; and they deem it their duty to stand by their trust and protect the graves of the departed from a useless disturbance, by carrying the public highway over the dead, to be trampled by horses hoofs or thrown out as rubbish.

Answer of Borough of Frankford on Meadow Street 11th Oct. 1851

16 The 1840 and 1850 Census Records indicate all of the protesters are African Americans. Deeds indicate they are also landowners.

5. That such an act of destruction may not take place at least before any opportunity be allowed to bring this Cemetery of the poor and destitute under the protective power of general law of the Commonwealth of 5 April 1849, the respondents pray such a delay as will enable them to appeal to the Legislature at the next session for relief.

6. And whether such relief and protection shall or shall not be obtained, the respondents submit that a measure So Unusual should at least be delayed until ample time be afforded to relatives to remove their dead before their graves shall be leveled and their bodies be trodden upon or cast out as all offense to the public.

22nd May 1873 — Submitted a communication from the Board of Public Education, requesting the privilege of erecting the new schoolhouse for colored children at Frankford, Twenty-third Ward, upon the centre of the public lot on the south side of Meadow street, instead of upon the western end of the site of the present building. 6th April 1874 – RESOLUTION: To approve contract and surety of William Keas, for the erection of a school house on the south side of Meadow street near Cherry street, in the Twenty-third Section. Approved. 24

Meadow and Cherry Streets met at the Public Burying Ground - the location of the Night School for Colored Adult Men and Women. At that time, Meadow Street was not yet extended through the graveyard. See the 1867 Controller’s Report. 25

Franklin D. Edmunds relates the Frankford Coloured School was of Wood Construction, Shingle Roof, Sod Yard, Paved Sidewalks with Detached Unheated Toilets, on the West side of Meadow St., North of Mulberry Street; that it was removed and replaced in 1874 by the Wilmot School. 26

Burgess Minutes: “...That it shall be divided into two Equal parts, by an Avenue of eight feet wide from one extremity to the other: the Northern division to be appropriated to the burying of white People and the Southern Division to burying People of Color…”

23 Because the Southern side of the Graveyard was reserved for People of Color — by today’s lens on history, it appears that racial origin was a factor in the City’s decision making for a change of location for the new colored school house. The City provided no explanation.

Political Meetings.—A number of political gatherings convened in various parts of the city last night. The only two of any note, however, being one at Concert Hall and the other at the Continental Theatre. Speeches were made at the former place by N. K. Richardson, Hon. Charles O’Neill, William D. Pierce, and others.

Last night the Union League of the Twenty-Third Ward and the Union citizens of Frankford, together with a delegation of the Republican Invincibles nearly four hundred strong, paraded through the principal streets of Frankford. The usual calvacade and motored transparencies made up part of the attraction. A large portion of the residents, including the ladies and even the children, lined the sidewalks, applauding the processionists with cheers and waving handkerchiefs. Residences on all the streets marched through were brilliantly illuminated. When the procession had passed over its route, which ended at the “Seven Stars” hotel, a large meeting was held, presided over by James Ashworth, Esq., late Captain in the 121st Regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteers. Three gentlemen made speeches—Rev. Mr. Dennison, Hon. M. Russell Thayer, candidate for Congress from the district, and William B. Mann, Esq.

By the late advices from the Department of the South, among other important matters, we see that General GILLMORE has been authorized by the War Department to enlist and organize all the colored troops that can be recruited within his department. Colonel M. S. Littlefield, Twenty-first Regiment United States Colored Troops, has been appointed by General Gillmore general superintendent of the colored recruiting service in that department, and charged with the payment of all bounties to those recruits, and also President of the Board for the examination of white officers for colored troops raised in that department. The policy of raising colored troops has now become a fixed fact with the Government, and the services which they have rendered in that department and elsewhere proves the wisdom of the undertaking; while their docility, discipline and bravery have successfully combatted the prejudice which first met the project. If there ever was a time or a war in which colored troops should take an active part, this Slaveholder's Rebellion now presents the opportunity. They have a peculiar interest in the struggle which is now going on between freedom and slavery for their race. If slavery shall now be broken in America, it will soon disappear from among the civilized nations which still hold to the custom. The colored men know and feel this, and they are determined to seize the golden promise which the future opens to their race, and they should be encouraged therein by all proper means.

The question of raising their pay equal to that of the white soldiers has been brought to the attention of Congress, recommended by the officers who have seen them in service, and who know the value of their services and their peculiar adaptability to the climate of the Department of the South.

From official statements, it appears that during four months of the sickly season at the siege of Charleston, the average of sickness among the white infantry regiments was twenty-two and six-tenths per cent., while the average of sickness in the colored infantry regiments was only thirteen and one-tenth per cent. In one brigade of white troops, during the same period, the average of sickness amounted to thirty-two and one-tenth per cent. of the whole number. These facts speak loudly for the availability and value of colored troops in that locality, and should be a most successful argument for giving them wages equal to the white troops. The colored troops are now paid seven dollars per month, and have three dollars per month allowance for clothing. The colored soldiers of the Fifty-fourth Massachusetts, killed in the assault on Fort Wagner, died indebted to the Government for their clothing, and they had received no pay. The Fifty-fifth colored Mass…"

For the Christian Recorder — 23rd January 1864:

MR. EDITOR: - We thought we would let you and your many readers know what is going on in the Twenty-third Ward, Frankford, Pa. The call for colored soldiers reached us, and the young men have responded to the call. Seventeen have enlisted, fifteen in the army and two in the navy. The evening after they enlisted, we called a meeting in the A.M.E. Church at Frankford, to encourage them for their bravery. The meeting was opened by singing the hymn, "Hark! Listen to the Trumpeters! They call for Volunteers," &c. Prayer by Mr. Henderson Davis, Sr. After which Mr. Henderson Davis was elected Chairman, and Mr. William S. Walker Secretary. Two or three gentlemen very eloquently addressed the brave boys, and the meeting adjourned. We will give you a list of the names of the men who enlisted: - James W. Davis, Alexander Bedford, Thomas Davis, Charles Somers, Joseph Lancaster, Benjamin Jackson, Jeremiah Murray, Silas Little, Benjamin Little, Elias Cury, Thomas Celvin Trusty, Edward F. Marks, James Butler, Andrew Trusty, Samuel Shorter, Benjamin Woodlin, Albert Farral. Respectfully yours, &c.

The 25th USCT at Camp William Penn

The image, probably an albumen print, features 18 African-American soldiers standing at attention, fully equipped with muskets and winter greatcoats, joined by a sword-bearing white officer on the far left. … Andy Waskie, an expert in Pennsylvania regiments, who identified the soldiers as members of the 25th U.S. Colored Infantry—an identification that has become widely accepted. Waskie…“has confirmed the photo is of the 25th USCT unit (possibly Company C or G), mobilized at Camp William Penn in February 1864 and sent to war in March 1864.

Missing from the original photographic portrait was a drummer boy. The story of a poster child (him?) is found below:

“I will tell you of a little boy, who has been wit us ever since we left Camp Wm. Penn. From what I learn, he ran away from his mother, about four miles this side of Richmond, Va., with the 25th Pennsylvania (whites,) to Washington City, but how he got to Philadelphia, I cannot say. We found him there, and he has been with us ever since, until of late, after having been shifted from one of the officers to an other, he was turned away, and now the poor little fellow has nobody to care for him. He has to go round from company to company, to get something to eat. As soon as we get paid off, we intend to send him to Philadelphia, to you, or to some of the Reform Schools, or to some one who will take care of him…”

OBITUARY.

Died, at Fort Pickens, Florida, Sergeant JAMES W. DAVIS, son of Rev. Henderson Davis, on July 19, 1864.

— THE CHRISTIAN RECORDER, 15th October 1864.
MR. EDITOR:
- Sir: - Allow me again, through the medium of your paper, to call your attention to a few things which I would wish to relate to our friends at home, relative to our regiment. We are at Fort Pickens, Florida, one of the greatest forts our country, or I might say, this country ever produced. Yet I have one fault to find with it, and that is, its scarcity of vegetable diet. Scurvy has been amongst our ranks since our embarkation from Philadelphia, and many a stout heart has yielded to its influence, and passed to that bourne from whence no traveller ever returned. Yet the boys keep up buoyant spirits. Thinking it might be interesting to you, as well as to the numerous readers of the Recorder, to know something concerning our condition, I submit the following for your and their perusal. For the last few weeks there has been an awakening among my brother soldiers, to their spiritual as well as to their temporal affairs; and on last Sabbath the Sacraments of Baptism and the Lord's Supper was administered to some 14 or 15 of our regiment. My earnest desire is, and shall ever be, that they may "Gird on the whole armor of faith, and fight the good fight, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith." We have also a school of an average of 60 to 80 scholars, in reading, writing, arithmetic, and geography, and also a Bible class. All these things tend to make our sojourn out here tolerably comfortable. Yet there is one thing lacking, and that is, our pay. We want, that in order to make comfortable those that are near and dear to us, and those we have sworn to love, cherish, and protect. Likewise, we are willing to suffer privations, endure hardship, and combat with the enemy, but when we sit down to meditate, 'tis hard; it almost drives one to do things contrary to law and military discipline, to think your partners relying on you for support, must wait month after month, day after day, without receiving any assistance, denying themselves of all happiness and comforts, with probably one or two children to look to them for maintenance and support. Now, Mr. Editor, I ask in the name of justice, can you blame the soldiers of the 25th regiment for being discontented? Reason says, no. Why are we not paid? Why are we promised and promised time and again, and yet receive no pay? Are we not worthy of it? The Scriptures say, "The laborer is worthy of his hire." They tell us we shall certainly get it. But when will that be? Will it occur when our families, driven to destitution and despair, shall wander from house to house begging their daily sustenance? Or, when driven from place, they shall seek the alms house for refuge? Justice echoes shame on such dilatoriness; and your humble servant says, Give us our just and honest dues; 'tis all we ask and all we want. Now, Mr. Editor, I will close, hoping you will insert in your paper such passages of this document as may be of interest to you and to the friends of the 25th U.S.C.T.
I cheerfully subscribe myself your humble servant,

JACOB S. JOHNSON,

P.S. In behalf of the regiment,
I will tender our best wishes to Colonel Wagner,
Camp William Penn, Chelten Hill, Philadelphia.

— THE CHRISTIAN RECORDER: 3rd December 1864.

CHELTEN HILLS – CHELTENHAM TOWNSHIP, MONTGOMERY COUNTY, PA.

FLORIDA CORRESPONDENCE. Fort Pickens, Fla., Nov. 7th, 1864.

MR. EDITOR: - The change of events, which are so singularly and significantly revolutionizing other localities, are not wanting in the place we occupy. Two years ago, or near that time, a torn, and scattered, and demoralized army, under General McClellan, fled from the battle-fields of Virginia, and sought refuge under the guns of Fort Pickens, where there is some of his scattered force yet to be seen, but now the scene has changed, for there is a detachment of four companies, of the gallant 25th, and some other companies, holding this, as a post well garrisoned by a brave set of the sable sons of Uncle Abe, who have passed through the fiery ordeal more than once, and were found to be free from any drops of cowardly material.

With a fort as formidable as Fort Pickens, through whose embrasures between two and three hundred angry-looking howitzers and rifled cannon seem to be angrily looking for a reb, besides there are some sixty-four gun men-of-war, and some eighteen or twenty smaller ones, lying out upon the deep blue sea, in front of us, ready at a moment's notice, to belch forth their vengeance into the planks, or vessels, of any invading foe. But this is not all that constitutes our defences, for we are all the time fortifying ourselves against any invading foe, by sea or land, that may approach.

I will tell you of a circumstance that occurred the other night. Our officers of the 25th used to go the grand round every night, and try to fool the pickets. They did it so often that the boys got used to it. But, mind you, the rebels were watching all their movements, so they thought they would take the advantage of our pickets, some dark night, and so they did. – Our rebel officer approached one of the cavalry pickets, same as our own officers, and got so close he just out with his pistol and let our picket down. So then there were some forty rebel pickets came over, and there was a general skirmish among our pickets and the rebel pickets and out of forty or more that crossed into our lines, there were none went back.

The whole of them were captured and marched off to the guard-house, under a heavy escort of guards, and all the casualties that happened to our men was one shot severely, and one run overboard by three rebs and not much hurt, and four or five slightly wounded. The next day the forts opened fire with bomb-shells, in and up and down the woods, for five or six miles. Fort Pickens, Fort Barrancas and Fort Reed belched forth fire, ball and destruction to every thing that happened to meet their rage, and we have heard of no rebels since in that quarter. … (next page)
A few days since, two companies of the 25th, two of the 82d, two of the Louisiana cavalry, and two of the white cavalry, who had been captured rebs and enlisted in the cavalry troops, went out on a scout, a hundred or two miles up the island, to a small town called Mariana, in West Florida, where there was supposed to be some eight hundred or a thousand inhabitants.

The general sent the white cavalry in the town to capture all inside from the biggest white reb, to the darkest contraband, while two more companies went to the west end of the town to meet them as the cavalry drove them out, but they did not come, for they went in on a trot, but they galloped out, and the general told them to go in again, but they refused, and the general took their battle flag from them, and then he told the Louisiana cavalry to perform that duty, at which they jumped.

They had not been in the town many minutes before there was a smoke seen, and rebs skedaddling in all directions, but the infantry stopped them when they came outside of the town, for it was too hot for them to stay in it, as the colored cavalry had the town half burnt down before the general stopped them. It was the women that did all the fighting, for they fired out of the windows and every by-place they met us. One woman walked right into the street with a pistol, and aimed at the general. - She fired and shot him in the left arm, breaking it between the shoulder and elbow. Another came out from another place, and shot Captain Young, of the 7th Vermont, through the heart, killing him instantly. Then the boys rushed on the women, and they had to bayonet several of them before they could get them out of the way.

So we captured one hundred and sixty-seven rebs, including one general, and several of the other officers, and two companies of the regiment brought them down the island safe to Fort Pickens, and next came two more companies, with two hundred head of cattle - plenty of fresh beef. Now, then came the general, and the Fort Pickens boys, with four hundred and fifty contrabands, men, women, and children, of all kinds and sizes. As soon as they came to the Fort, we, the 25th boys, gave them our tents, and they put them up in our old camping place, and at night, all the companies, B, H, E, and C, made them three kettles of coffee apiece, twelve in all, by authority of our noble Major Risinger, of the Fort.

Then came the cowardly cavalry, with the colored Louisiana cavalry behind them, bringing up the rear with about one hundred and forty horses and mules; so this ends their captures this time. But if the general had known there were one thousand contrabands just three miles distant on a small plantation, before he got so far away, he would have had all of them. - They are going again, next week.

Yours truly,

Sergt. A. J. BEDFORD,

The Public Ledger (Philadelphia,) says that the Frankford Horse Railroad has tried the experiment of letting colored persons ride in its cars, and found it unprofitable - more being lost by whites refusing to ride with negroes than is gained by the custom of the latter.

Whereupon, says The Ledger: "It is not to be expected that business companies will sacrifice their pecuniary interests to carry out a political or social principle. "Probably not. we have only to say to Mr. Childs, the present editor and proprietor of The Ledger, that that is just what is the matter. Now that The Ledger and such other papers give credence to such God-hated wrongs, how long will it be before men will learn to do right?"

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

(WAR IS OVER – A HOMECOMING FOR THE U. S. C. T.)

Police Intelligence.—Sunday Disturbance At Frankford

About 7 o'clock last Sunday evening (sept.16) quite a melee occurred on the main street of Frankford, sadly disturbing the Sabbath quiet of that sweet rural district. Eight or ten negroes visiting the town had entered the Seven Star hotel to get drinks, and were taunted with chaffing words by some white bar-room loungers. When the negroes went out into the road one of them spoke warmly to a companion about the insult, and being overheard by one of the white rowdies following was knocked down by him. A general fist and stone fight ensued, until a couple of hundred persons, had gathered around. After some heads had been pretty badly battered, the negroes were driven down Foulkrod street. The police then interfered and quelled the riot, arresting Thomas Davis, Alexander Bedford, and Andrew Rust, (colored) with Percival S. More, S.N. More and Charles C. Dryden, (white) the latter of whom, it is alleged, struck the first blow, Alderman Holme held each of the offender in $400 to answer.

The Unburied Caterer

Mrs. Jones, the widow of the caterer, says that she bought a lot at Mount Moriah Cemetery instead of one of the cemeteries for colored persons, because the burying grounds of St. Thomas, Big Wesley and Bethel have been condemned because they are in the heart of the city. In the Lebanon Cemetery, in which Mrs. Jones’ family own four lots, and in Olive Cemetery, the city is cutting streets, one of the streets having gone through two of her lots in the former, leaving no room for her husband to be buried there.

TO PROMOTE CIVIL RIGHTS A PHILADELPHIA LAWYERS’ REMARKABLE REQUEST

The Register of wills this morning admitted to probate the will of John D. Lewis, colored, late a member of the Philadelphia bar, who last week died suddenly of heart disease at his office, at Eighth and Locust Streets. The estate left by the decedent consists mainly of real property located in Toronto and this city, valued at about $100,000. The last mentioned was counsel against the Mount Moriah Cemetery Company in a famous case fifteen years ago, in which the Supreme Court ordered the interment in its grounds of Henry Jones, the noted colored caterer, who was the father-in-law of Mr. Lewis.30

Wilmot Park project starts, but funds are coming up a bit short — 6th April 2011

Preliminary work for installation of new playground equipment has begun in Frankford's Wilmot Park, at Mulberry and Meadow streets.

Excavating old blacktop near the small park's basketball court began two weeks ago, according to Jason Dawkins, an aide to City Councilwoman Maria Quinones-Sanchez (D-7th dist.), who gave the news to members of the Frankford Parks Group during their meeting March 28 in the 2nd Baptist Church of Frankford.

But Dawkins and Kimberly Washington, the group's president, said the organization is out of money and $9,000 more is needed to pay for the work.

Dawkins said he expected installation of new equipment to begin this week and that it would be ready for the youths by April 16. He's hoping to organize a basketball tournament for the grand opening.

2014 SESSION A3: CREATIVE PLACEMAKING IN FRANKFORD PHILADELPHIA

SUMMARY & OPINION: EARLY RACISM IN FRANKFORD BOROUGH

Frankford Burgess minutes reveal that Civil Complaints were filed against Black people and White people equally.

Warnings were more often issued against the Frankford Friends School House than against the A.M.E. Church of Frankford, usually for blocking the street or entrance of a Public building. This was a violation of an ordinance to protect against being trapped in a building during a fire. No Black person every paid a fine, because the corrective measures were immediate.

12th July 1849, the Sanitation Ordinance To Combat The Cholera Epidemic (page 15, figure 17) may be an indication of high death rates and burials in Frankford Borough as well as the City of Philadelphia.39

The protests by members of the Black Community (1850-1851), against the opening of Meadow Street through the Public Burial Ground were successful. This may be an indication of a high number of African Americans interred within.

When the American Civil War broke out – young men of Frankford’s Black Community who enlisted in the Union Army were assigned to the United States Colored Troops. In 1866, after the War, a race riot began in Frankford. Black Veterans paid a return visit to Union Army recruitment station, the Seven Stars Hotel – Whites outnumbered the Blacks by 20 to 1.

The transition of the Public Burial Ground to Wilmot “Colored” Cemetery becomes clear around 1874, with the construction of David Wilmot Public School and the opening of Meadow Street through the Public Burial Ground.

The 1875 Civil Rights violations by Mount Moriah Cemetery was an indicator of Public sediment harbored by Philadelphia’s White population. It somewhat resembled the early Quaker’s practices “justified” from within their Christian values. White Christians did not want to be near Black people, not on the horse-drawn omnibus and not in a graveyard.

According to newspaper accounts, the Robert Bryan Post No. 80, Grand Army of the Republic first came to Frankford Memorial Day of 1881 to decorate “Wilmot Cemetery.” This may be an indication that “Wilmot” was now officially a Black Cemetery that contained a sufficient number of deceased African American Veterans.

Robert Bryan Post No. 80 was last seen in Frankford on Memorial Day in 1907 visiting Wilmot and Bethel (Campbell A.M.E.) Cemeteries. They returned as War heroes on the 8th July 1918, very aged. They needed an escort by women.

OPINION: What did the Civil War give to Black America? In the beginning - Nothing!

Before the War of 1861, an underground railroad was operating out in the open with The Christian Recorder as a conductor, The Liberator as an engineer, numerous Black Churches all working toward a common goal against Slavery and oppression.

The change came when the Union became desperate for manpower & labor. On the 18th July 1862, the Militia Act was legislated, on the 1st January 1863, Lincoln passed the Emancipation Proclamation and 3rd March 1863, the Enrollment Act, allowing African Americans to join the War.40 Invite and entrance into the Civil War gave Black Americans: Self-esteem with a belief, the hope and an opportunity to prove they were the better human beings.41

Victory in the Civil War created African American War Heroes, Black parades, Black celebrations, Black music – American music. Victory in that War was a transition from Slavery to Freedom and was the birth of true American music.

Flag-Raising in Frankford.

“Fort Byram,” located at Willow and Margaret streets in Frankford, was yesterday afternoon the scene of the most enthusiastic and impressive flag raising held in the suburb. The “fort” is named in honor of Select Councilman J. Emory Byram, and he was present and delivered an address. The exercises were begun by a drill by the Byram Guards, a company of colored boys, commanded by Captain Bud Smith. The combined church choirs from the Campbell, Trinity, Zion and Law’s A.M.E. Churches and the two thousand people present sang “My Country ‘Tis of Thee.” Prayer was offered by the Rev. Arnold, of Campbell A. M. E. Church.

Chairman Lewis Bedford then introduced Colonel Byram. In the course of his remarks the Councilman spoke of the early history of Frankford and said when that a boy, Alexander Bedford, a well known and respected resident of the town, and father of Lewis Bedford, who had just introduced him, had carried him on his back across a most dangerous stream. He said that the future of the country rested with the boys of today, and they should all receive a good education to enable them to honorably fulfill their duties to their God, their country and themselves.

Florence Jones sang “The Star Spangled Banner,” cannon boomed and the flag, the gift of Colonel Byram, was lifted to the breeze amid the vast assemblage.

“Fort Byram” was erected mostly by colored boys and is a stone stronghold, seven feet high and one hundred feet in circumference. The walls are three feet thick. Eleven “guns” are mounted. The officers are: William H. Mason, first lieutenant, James Stewart; second lieutenant, James Rothwell; sergeant, Charles B. Jones; quartermaster sergeant, Earle Sommers; commissary sergeant, Robert Knight; orderly sergeant, James Roan; first duty sergeant, John Anderson; corporals, Clarence Owens, Joseph E. Lunk, Walter Johnson and Charles Lee. Other Flags Raised. ...Sergeant Harry Glesker made an address and said that the spirit which built the ‘fort’ was a patriotic one and there never was a time in history of the country when fidelity to raise the flag was as conspicuous as it is to-day in all sections of the country. The unification and the amalgamation of the various races within the country make us the greatest nation on earth. …

POST MORTEM

Let it be understood — Many burials were conducted out of the various Frankford Area Churches, both Black and White. Some of those churches no longer exist, while many are still holding church services today. Many funeral services were conducted far away, but interment was in Wilmot. The number of people interred in this burial ground will never be known.

As for the U.S.C.T., because a soldier enlisted from Frankford should not imply that he lived there or is interred in Frankford.

“This index represents an attempt to document all African American soldiers and sailors from Chester County who served in the Civil War. Unlike their white counterparts, black volunteers did not muster into local companies. There were no black Pennsylvania regiments. Local volunteers from Chester County joined the United States Colored Troops (USCT) or other black state regiments such as the 54th Massachusetts. This index defines a Chester County soldier as 1 who was born here, and/or resided here at the time of enlistment, and/or lived and died here after the war. Of those identified, Chester County African Americans served in over 30 different regiments. The largest contingent of Chester County soldiers (134) served in the 3rd USCT. This regiment was mustered in at Camp William Penn outside of Philadelphia in August of 1863.

“Conscripting (drafting) men for United States military service and the expanded enlistment of African Americans following the Emancipation Proclamation coincided in the spring of 1863.

Black men of military age were just as subject to conscription as white men. At the time, drafted men could either pay a $300 commutation fee to get out of their service obligation, or they could provide a substitute. In most cases, the substitute charged the drafted man to serve in his place. We do not know the motivation behind Joseph S. Money’s decision to serve as a substitute for a man named Henry Johnson. Unfortunately, due to Johnson’s common name, details into his life cannot be ascertained.

Regardless, Joseph Money enlisted on August 5, 1863, at Frankford, a suburb northeast of Philadelphia. At 32-years old, Pvt. Money, born in Salem, New Jersey, was older than the average Civil War soldier. He was not a tall man, measuring just under 5’4”. The enlisting officer described Money’s complexion as ‘brown.’”

7. STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE – CONCLUSION.

In the earliest years, the resource was well used and well kept as a burial ground. The Frankford community has used it for the last 210 years in some capacity. Supported by the evidence, original source documents and research: The Free Burial Ground of Frankford situate 1801 Meadow Street is an extremely significant historic site meriting designation by the Philadelphia Historical Commission and inclusion on the Philadelphia Register of Historic Places, satisfying the following Criteria for Designation: a, g, i, and j as enumerated in § 14-1004 of the Philadelphia Code:
