Dear Dr. Farnham: Re: 2301 Fairmount Ave.
Committee on Historic Designation, January 19, 2022

Spring Garden Community Development Corporation strongly supports the historic designation of 2301 Fairmount Avenue to the Philadelphia Register.

While currently undesignated, the property is an important historic structure in Philadelphia's rich history - - and one well-deserving of historic designation - - having housed one of the original lager beer breweries in the City, and, arguably, in the Country.

Founded by German immigrants, the City's lager brewing business, with origins at this site, grew to be an important Philadelphia industry for which the City became nationally known.

The property is also directly across the street from the Spring Garden Historic District and is situated on the Fairmount Avenue Commercial Corridor, which features a number of historically designated properties. The property at 2301 Fairmount Avenue should be added to this treasured collection of historic properties along the Avenue. The designation and preservation of 2301 Fairmount Avenue will significantly enhance the Spring Garden District and serve to promote the existing historic fabric of the entire abutting area.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Patricia L. Freeland

Dear Dr. Farnham: Re: 2301 Fairmount Ave.
 Committee on Historic Designation
 January 19, 2022 Meeting

Spring Garden Civic Association strongly supports the inclusion of 2301 Fairmount Ave. in the Philadelphia Register of Historic Places, for the reasons set forth in the nomination submission.

As stated, the property reflects an important era in Philadelphia's history and should be preserved.

Also, a demolition of that property, if historic designation is denied, would most likely precipitate a chain reaction of demolitions of nearby historic (but unprotected) structures, which would devastate the block, and the surrounding area.

Thank you.

Please do not let yet another historic building in Philadelphia be demolished! Our city is losing its character building by building.

Dear Dr. Farnham:

I am writing in support of the designation of 2301 Fairmount Avenue, historically known as the Rothacker-Orth Brewery and Lager Beer Saloon, and listing on the Register of Historic Places.

While the property and its tenant businesses, most recently London Grill, have been central to the modern Fairmount neighborhood, I was impressed to learn through the historic nomination how many generations have enjoyed its presence. It is remarkable that since the 1850's there has been a saloon and restaurant serving the community, at the corner of 23rd and Fairmount Avenue, that would be equally recognizable to our 19th Century and 21st Century neighbors. Philadelphia is enriched and made distinct by the chance to live alongside history. Designation will help ensure that future residents benefit, as current and past Philadelphians have.

The role of the building in the growth of the lager beer brewing industry in the city is noteworthy as well. This structure's history reflects the connection and flow of people, industry and ideas between Europe and North America, Philadelphia's original German immigrants and its current residents, and from communities like Kensington, to Fairmount and Brewerytown. Neighbors are truly bound across generations and communities through shared experiences and landmarks, like 2301 Fairmount Avenue. The opportunity to continue to learn from and participate in this history, through preservation and historic designation, is unique and essential to seize.

Fairmount Community Development Corporation fully supports the preservation of this important property and encourages the Committee on Historic Designation to recommend designation of 2301 Fairmount Avenue to the Philadelphia Historical Commission and for the Commission to give its full approval for listing on the Philadelphia Register of Historic Places.

Dear Dr. Farnham:

I am writing to fully support the historic designation of 2301 Fairmount Avenue, historically known as the Rothracker-Orth Brewery and Lager Beer Saloon to the Philadelphia Register of Historic Places. As you know, the historic nomination for this property was scheduled to be heard at the Historical Commission's Committee on Historic Designation on October 20th but a Continuance was granted to the March 2022 meeting of the Committee. This property has been a landmark institution in Fairmount for many years, most recently as London's Grill. However, I was surprised and impressed when I read the nomination to learn of the important role this unassuming building played in the development of the lager beer brewing industry in the city. In addition, it is truly noteworthy that since the 1850's, at the corner of 23rd and Fairmount Avenue, there has been a saloon/brewery/restaurant serving the Fairmount community. Therefore, our organization fully supports the preservation of this important property and encourages the Committee on Historic Designation to recommend designation of 2301 Fairmount Avenue to the Philadelphia Historical Commission and for the Commission to give its full approval for listing on the Philadelphia Register of Historic Places.

My wife and I are long time residents at 651 N 22nd Street, Philadelphia, PA 19130. We support the proposed "historic designation" of the London and wish to voice our concern and about the removal of the building for a RE development project. We are apposed to the project as it stands and would like the historic building to remain. A new restauranteur would be our preference.

Thank you,
Brian and Anne Marie

Dear Dr. Farnham:

As the President of Eastern State Penitentiary, a National Historic Landmark just one block east of 2301 Fairmount, I am writing on behalf of our organization to fully support the historic designation of this building, historically known as the Rothacker-Orth Brewery and Lager Beer Saloon to the Philadelphia Register of Historic Places. As you know, the historic nomination for this property was scheduled to be heard at the Historical Commission's Committee on Historic Designation on October 20th but a Continuance was granted to the March 2022 meeting of the Committee.

This property has been a landmark institution in Fairmount for many years, most recently as London's Grill. However, I was surprised and impressed when I read the nomination to learn of the important role this unassuming building played in the development of the lager beer brewing industry in the city. In addition, it is truly noteworthy that since the 1850's, at the corner of 23rd and Fairmount Avenue, there has been a saloon/brewery/restaurant serving the Fairmount community. In addition, it is an anchor building at this corner, to its adjacent residential three-story buildings to the west.

Opened in 1829, Eastern State sat alone on Coates Street (now Fairmount Avenue). To recognize and designate a building that survives from this early period as the city expanded northward tells a fascinating story of early industry in the neighborhood.

Therefore, our organization fully supports the preservation of this important property and encourages the Committee on Historic Designation to recommend designation of 2301 Fairmount Avenue to the Philadelphia Historical Commission and for the Commission to give its full approval for listing on the Philadelphia Register of Historic Places.
