

Philadelphia Honors Diversity Flag Raising Program Overview & Guidelines

The Philadelphia Honors Diversity Flag Raising Program honors residents with international heritage with the goal to make Philadelphia a more welcoming city for immigrants. Flag raisings are intended to occur on a date of cultural significance for the community being honored.

Philadelphia Honors Diversity Flag Raising Program Background:

The Philadelphia Honors Diversity Flag Raising Program was launched by the City of Philadelphia in 2018 and celebrates rich diversity, as the nation's first World Heritage City. The program honors residents with international heritage with the goal to make Philadelphia a more welcoming city for immigrants. The Philadelphia Honors Diversity Flag Raising Program is administered through a collaboration between the City's Office of the City Representative (OCR) and the Office of Immigrant Affairs (OIA). The program has flown 40 flags since its inception in 2018 with consistent return applicants each year.

The Philadelphia Honors Diversity Flag Raising Program is separate from the City's Flags on the Benjamin Franklin Parkway Program and other parts of the city. The Flags on the Parkway Program is currently administered by the Mayor's Office and is not subject to the guidelines below. The City first hung international flags on the Parkway in 1976 as part of the observance of our country's bicentennial. Due to space constraints, the Flags on the Parkway are currently at capacity and unable to accommodate any additional requests for flags.

Separate flag raisings may occur at the discretion of the Mayor's Office to advance the administration's goals of diversity, equity and inclusion (i.e. LGBTQ, Juneteenth, Indigenous People's Day.)
